ABOUT WHEAT GRASS JUICE

Health-conscious individuals term wheat grass as one of the so-called "green foods" that is valued as a great source of natural nutrients. In juice form, wheat grass contains 70% Chlorophyll, which is often referred to as the blood of plant life and most closely resembles the molecules of human red blood cells. Chlorophyll has been shown to produce an unfavorable environment for bacterial growth in the body and therefore effective in increasing the body resistance to illness.

WHEAT GRASS JUICE CAN ALSO:

- Help to reduce high blood pressure, as it cleanses the bloodstream.
- Enhances the white blood cell count, strengthening the immune system.
- Alleviates anemia, as the chlorophyll raises the hemoglobin level of the blood.
- Supplies laetrile, which selectively destroys cancerous cells without harming normal cells.
- Rubbed into scalp, reduces dandruff and restores the normal color to hair.
- Used as a mouth wash, relieves toothache and sore throat, and helps prevent tooth decay.
- Is one of the richest sources of vitamins A, B, and C. It is an excellent source of calcium, iron, magnesium, phosphorus, potassium, sodium, sulfur, cobalt, zinc, and protein.
